Legacies of Violence: The We-ness of History

In psychoanalysis, the trans-generational turn has focus on our inherited wounds of our pre-history. In this workshop we will ask about another secret history: our legacies of violence. Many of us carry multiple, and shifting, historical positions, in which our forebears have been both victims and perpetrators. Our perpetrator ghosts are sequestered in cultural and familial dissociation. Knowing these histories can be destabilizing to ourselves and to our cultural narratives.

Utilizing readings from history, psychoanalysis, literature, as well as representations in film we will ask how these legacies define and effect us and how we can transform them.

This workshop will take place in an intimate setting (no more than 25 participants) over the course of 1 day (before the conference). 6 CEUs available.
